20 August 2021 - Global fire protection maintenance software provider FireMate (headquartered in Brisbane, Australia) has merged with LAN Control Systems (Nottingham, UK). The two Halma sister companies have been collaborating for more than a year and will now be known globally as FireMate.

"FireMate's asset management software enables compliance with British fire standards and is a real game-changer for the British fire protection industry.", says Brett Emery, General Manager FireMate UK. "The solution is available and supported in the UK. Fire System Integrators using the system see immediate productivity enhancements and customer service benefits."

FireMate's fire protection maintenance software package includes an admin console for service managers, a mobile app for fire protection specialists in the field and a portal that enables customers to access all relevant property information. The system offers scheduling, compliance reporting, quoting and invoicing, and defect management. This provides valuable business insights and increases efficiencies for fire engineers, service managers and business owners.

"Combining the Nimbus family of remote fire systems monitoring solutions with FireMate's software enhances transparency and compliance for Facility Managers and Fire System Integrators.", says Rob Thomas, Managing Director at FireMate.

Nimbus fire alarm management solutions support remote monitoring of fire panels from all major manufacturers. With the Nimbus Gateway deployed on-site, the Nimbus portal and mobile app provide anywhere, anytime visibility. This reduces false fire brigade call-outs and enables single engineer testing, significantly decreasing maintenance costs.
